Legal Railway Decisions.
An interesting decision was made by the Supreme Court of Georgia in favor of the Georgia railroad. This was a suit for $20,000, brought by Owen Underhill, of Atlanta, Ga., against the conductor of a train, which he had taken from Atlanta to Augusta. Conductor James B. Johnson took up his ticket, and gave him a stop-over ticket, allowing him to stop over at one point. Owen protested in writing, claiming that he had the right to stop as often as he chose. He boarded the train next day at Barnett. Conductor Walah then took up his "stopover" ticket. This left him without any ticket. He refused to do either, whereupon Johnson put him off. This suit was then brought for $20,000 damages. The jury found a verdict for the railroad.

The Supreme Court of Kansas, in the case of animals killed by railroad trains, held that a railroad company is not guilty of negligence in failing to protect the swine in a township when they are permitted to run at large, and it appears from an agreed statement of the parties that a hog was killed by the negligence of the railroad company in such township, and it further appears that the negligence of the owner in permitting the animals to run at large, in violation of the statute laws, contributed directly to the injury.

The negligence of the defendant was offset by the negligence of the plaintiff, and the owner of the animal could not recover for the loss.

The Supreme Court of Georgia decided that, in a suit against a railroad for loss of goods, if its liability was limited to the defendant, to pay by the agents of a connecting road, held in good order to it; and, although the witness may never have seen the goods, they may testify from the books of their company, proved to have been made in the usual order of business and to be accurate. Also that, when a writing is shown to be lost or beyond the jurisdiction of the court, secondary evidence of its contents is admissible.

The Peacock and the Oyster.—A Peacock set out to cross a field of land to save himself if a long walk around it, and he journeyed along the dusty highway, content with the world, the climate, and his surroundings, suddenly heard a harsh voice crying out to him to halt. As he rode on into the hands of a peasant, a Peacock, he gave him a look of contempt and derision.

"How now, Sarah? Where are you going, and what is your errand?"

"I am simply crossing from water to water, and tired enough I am. I believe I have been three good hours makin' half a mile."

"Three hours? Why I could strum the distance in three minutes! Ah me, but you don't amount to much for me."

"No; a child can swallow me at a single bite."

"And you aren't the least bit pretty."

"That's true. My shell is coarse and all of ridges."

"And you can't sing?"

"Not a note."

"Nor fly?"

"Not a fly."

"Well, well, I really pity you. Now then, if you want to see something surely, just gaze on me."

The bird strutted up and down, head up and tail spread out, and the Oyster was compelled to say that it was a sight to see.

"While you creep I walk, strut and strut."

"Yes."

"While you whisper I sing."

"Yes."

"While you tumble around in the mud and sand I reflect all the colors of the rainbow on the lawn."

"I must admit it," sighed the Oyster.

"And, while a pig-weed shelter you, it takes a whole apple tree to give me shade. You are a bore."

At that Oyster flew. An Eagle had been looking for a breakfast. The hungry Oyster, hidden away under the weed, escaped his piercing glances, but the gorgeous Peacock was instantly seen and spotted. There was a whirr, a scream, and the Eagle had ascended with the vain-glorious bird fast in his claws.

"Come to think it all over," said the Oyster, as he quinted his lardous eye aloft, "it is about as well to be an oyster under a pig-weed as a peacock in the claws of an eagle. I guess I'll move on."

Those who were born to strut should not exult over those who were born to creep.—Free Press.

Beer by the Gallon.

The Journal of Applied Science gives some detailed information as to the production of beer, the number of breweries, and the consumption of beer per head of the population in the different countries of Europe:

Country	No. of Breweries	Consumption
Great Britain	1,000,000	26,214
Germany	900,000	23,940
Austria	800,000	23,840
Belgium	180,000	2,500
France	150,000	2,100
Denmark	100,000	1,600
Holland	90,000	6,524
Spain	60,000	440
Denmark	30,000	400
Norway	17,000	300
Iceland	10,000	80
Norway	10,000	80
Other Countries	30,000	50

Of the 23,930 breweries in the German Empire, 12,000 are alone bad, when the last returns were made, in 1874, while in Prussia the number of breweries has fallen from 10,000 to 7,246, though the quantity of beer brewed has not diminished. Berlin, which supplies nearly all the beer drunk in that city, had in 1876 only forty-nine breweries, but they were on so large a scale that they made, on an average, nearly 1,000,000 gallons each. The same is true of France, where the production of beer has tripled during the last forty years, while the number of breweries has diminished. Nearly a fourth of the Austrian beer is brewed in Bohemia, and the imports of beer continue to diminish, while the quantity exported is seven or eight times greater than it was twenty years ago.

"WHAT! Twenty-five cents a pound for sausages?" "Why, I can get 'em down at Schmidt's for 20 cents." "Well, den, vy didn't you?" "Cause Schmidt was out of 'em." "Well, vy I was out of 'em I sell 'em for twenty cents, den."

"If you ever think of marrying a widow," said an anxious parent, "look her over, select one whose first husband was hanged; for that is the only way to prevent her from dragging his memory into your life, and making annoying comparisons." "Even that won't prevent it," said the old bachelor; "she'll give him her saying that hanging would be too good for you."

The Brandon Daily Mail,

FRIDAY, JANUARY 13, 1883.

WANTED.—At the MAIL Office, a smart intelligent lad about 12 years of age to deliver the MAIL to regular city subscribers and learn the printing business. Good encouragement will be offered to a boy who means business.

WANTED.—A smart young man to do chores and make himself generally useful at office of Daily MAIL.

BRANDON BUDGET.

The thermometer 23° below zero last night. The clerk's counter in the C. P. R. office has been raised.

Eight car loads of coal arrived by freight train, 11 o'clock.

The band boys are raising a hue and cry. Where will we get a band master?

The School Board held no meeting last evening. The reason being no quorum.

Mr. Clement Smith, land agent, has received a quantity of blank forms for word permits to be filled by applicants.

Mr. J. S. Arnalite, of Minneapolis, it is understood, has contracted with a Winnipeg syndicate for bringing out a quantity of fish.

Electors will remember that Janus is there is no voters' list for the city, the so in Brandon will be under the old Act.

A social hop is to be held at the Royal Hotel this evening, and a number of young Germans assembled. Mr. Engels twice a year to the station at Ottawa and holds meetings among the German population.

The train from the West which left Regina on Wednesday afternoon arrived here last evening at 5 p.m. It was cancelled in arriving at Broadway, fearing a snow blockade. However, "better late than never."

Errors will sometimes occur even in a printing office, and by one we were made to say the other day, that Mr. Center had returned with my article. The misleading word was with. It should be—well, we won't say it, but a hand of Brandon ladies do.

Mr. R. J. Little, ex-Warden of Norfolk, and brother-in-law of Mr. E. Evans, of this city, is in the field as Conservative candidate for the Local House. Mr. Little's prospects of success are excellent, and he will most assuredly be elected by a good majority.

A firm of lumber dealers, in the city, is anxious to find the whereabouts and nearest express office of Mr. Smith. It appears this gentleman bought a bill of lumber some time ago, and as he neglected to settle, any information as to his present address and financial standing would be gratifyingly received—as would also the amount of the account—not rendered.

We are pleased to notice that John H. Brown's new building is about completed, and is certainly an ornament to Rosser Avenue. His store front is one of the neatest in Brandon, and does credit to our city. He has reopened in the new store with a choice new stock of groceries, fruits and canned goods. Mr. Brown intends to open up a fancy bakery and confectionery in connection with his business, and is a manufacturing confectioner, which he will also carry on. From his experience and his success in Chatham, Ont., he will no doubt be a valuable addition to our business men.—Adv.

The Western Palladium, published in Mobile, Illinois, is a neat sixteen page monthly which has just been laid on our table. Its contents are varied and most interesting, and embraces the farm and household, while a page is devoted to the young folks. It also contains several well written stories and political clippings. The intention of the publisher is evidently to make it a paper suitable for the farmer, and in this respect he has admirably succeeded. The subscription price is 50c. per year, and W. Johnston, Ninth St., is prepared to take the names of those who may desire to subscribe. We would advise the farmer to send his name to you Mr. and examine the paper.

THE FIREMEN'S CONCERT.

A Bumper House Greets Our Fire-Fighters.

A GRAND SUCCESS.

The Firemen's concert came off last night in the Immigrant House. The assembly was so great that many people had to stand, and in other rooms could hardly be obtained. The hall was suitably decorated, displaying great taste and neatness, the result of the efforts of Mrs. Alexander, Miss Alexander and other ladies as well as the members of the brigade, who each and all contributed to make the evening a success. At one end of the hall was erected the platform behind which was the flag of the Dominion with a fire hose in its coils with crossed ends in front and a lantern placed in the mouth of the centre one and a lantern on the other side. The hall was round and red, studded with large signs and down the centre suspended in waves from the roof was strung the "Red, White and Blue." The entertainment opened at 8 o'clock, by the Brass Band playing an overture. There was a full effect on account of a runaway with a team that had been sent for the lady performers, which detained three-quarters of an hour, leaving the audience a little impatient. Another overture was played by the band, after which Mr. Sifton stepped on the platform and explained matters, also giving a reading, "Buck Fanshaw." The singers arrived about a quarter to nine o'clock, when the following programme began in earnest. A song sung by Mr. O'Donnell, "Come back to Erin," which was well rendered. Next followed a recitation from Robt. J. Salisbury, entitled "Bernardo del Carpio," given with much pathos, showing that gentleman to be possessed of great eloquence powers. The series of tableaux by the Brigade was a novelty, the first pictured scenes in the life of firemen—"Facing the Enemy"—and was a vivid representation that deceived the imagination. Mrs. Alexander sang with much feeling "The Soldier's Return." "The Jackadam of Ichneumon" was recited in a masterly style. The Misses Parish gave a duet—"The Two Cousins"—in such a way as to elicit an encore, which was responded to by singing "The Tapping at the Garden Gate." "The Pride of England" was the next tableau, represented by aerial suspension. Miss Alexander presented a gaily sight that thrilled the audience, whose hearts beat at the beautiful form hanging suspended in the midst of the fire.

The second part of the programme opened by Miss Katie Lee and T. Lockhart singing a duet entitled "Matrimonial Sweats," which fairly carried the audience, and they had to respond to an encore.

A recitation by F. L. Newman, "The Quack Doctor," caused the sides to ache. By request Mrs. Alexander sang "The Dying Nun," which was exquisitely rendered. The Maypole dance, given by four young ladies and the same number of gentlemen, in themselves, a theatrical troupe, pleased well. Miss Browne sang "Amber Tresses tied in Blue," in a prominent way. "Sultan's Pride" was the next tableau in which Mrs. Alexander hung a quivering form and the audience held their breath at the picture so wonderfully well presented. Another tableau, "Prompt to Rescue," completed the programme, and the crowd dispersed to "God Save the Queen."
